Ford Hails Reagan, Attacks Mondale; Platform Approved

Mr. Reagan's rival for the 1976 presidential nomination enter-tained convention delegates Tuesday night with a recital of the president's domestic accomplishments and an attack on the Democratic presidential nominee, Walter F. "President Reagan" Mr. Ford continued, "can be proud of his record of reducing inflation by more than two-thirds, the prime interest rate by more than one-third and the misery index by nearly half. That's what I call being fair to everybody."

The "misery index" is the sum of the rates of inflation and unem-ployment. Mr. Mondale and Jimmy Carter used the phrase in their successful 1976 campaign against

One of the few who shouted no" in the voice vote was Maureen Reagan, the president's older daughter. She told The Associated press that she had voted against the platform because party conserva-tives "refused to accept those of us who believe in the Equal Rights Amendment"

The document, written by Representative Trent Lott of Mississippi and a group of young conserva-tives led by Representative Jack F. Kemp of New York, rules out a tax increase next year, promises further tax reductions and strikes an uncompromisingly conservative tone on social and foreign policy

Mr. Kemp presented the foreign policy planks with a slashing attack on the Democratic Party.

"Millions of Americans no longer feel at home in a party whose leaders see no difference between the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and the American liberation of Grenada ... a party whose leaders shun the task of cultivating democracy in the hard soil of Central America," he said.

"The leaders of the Democratic Party aren't soft on communism," Mr. Kemp said. "They're soft on

Weizman Joins Peres in Accord On Israeli Rule

By Glenn Frankel

JERUSALEM - Ezer Weizman, a former defense minister and now the head of a small political party, agreed Wednesday to join an Israeli government headed by the Labor Party leader. Shimon Peres. The decision brought the country's monthlong electoral impasse closer

Mr. Weizman said that he still preferred a broad-based national unity government that would in-clude both Labor and its main political rival, the Likud bloc. But he added that if such a coalition proved impossible, he would enter a narrow-based Labor government ed by Mr. Peres.

The agreement, which reportedly followed a five-hour overnight ses-sion between Mr. Weizman and Mr. Peres, leaves Labor at least six seats short of a clear majority in the 120-member Knesset, the parliament. Mr. Weizman's Yahad Party holds three seats.

Mr. Weizman said he hoped his move would help break the electoral deadlock that began a month ago when both major political blocs fell far short of a ruling majority in parliamentary elections. Labor then won 44 seats and Likud 41.

NEW YORK - John A. Zaccaro made a second loan, for $75,000, from an estate he manages as a court-appointed conservator to the real estate management company owned by him and his wife, Geraldine A. Ferraro, according to an attorney for the couple.

Ms. Ferraro, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate, declined at a press conference Tuesday to discuss dealings between the estate and the company. She cited a court hearing to be held Thursday concerning an earlier $100,000 loan from the estate.

The New York congresswoman has said she learned of the $100,000 loan only recently, several months after her husband was cautioned by a court referee about a possible impropriety.

Ms. Ferraro said at the press conference that she had not known about the business activities of the management company, although she owns a third of it and has been an officer and director. Mr. Zaccaro operates the company.

He added that the United States disagreed with the reasons cited for the cancellation and regretted the Greek decision.

In addition to ending the Zeus maneuvers, Greece also said it would again not take part in the NATO air, naval and land exercises in the Aegean Sea from Sept. 17 to Oct. 20. Experts Examine U.S.-Soviet Pitfalls and Long-Range Effects

New York Times Service WASHINGTON - With the prospect that the United States next year will have either a second-term Republican president with new flexibility in international affairs or a new Democratic president with different ideas about international affairs, experts on Soviet affairs in and out of government are beginning to turn their thoughts to what might be.

The attitude among professionals in the Reagan administration is generally upbeat as they look be-youd the turnoil caused by President Ronald Reagan's offhand remarks about "bombing" Russia.

Many believe, as does Heimut Sonnenfeldt of the

Coup Charge Brings Liberia Boycott

ABIDIAN, Ivory Coast (Reuters) — Students at the University of Liberia have been boycotting classes following the arrest of a professor who has been accused of plotting to overthrow the Liberian leader.

Samuel K. Doe, university sources said Wednesday.

The university authorities have demanded the release of the professor. Amos Sawyer, Monrovia radio reported. Mr. Doe warned that they would be held responsible for any student disturbances. University faculty, meanwhile, expressed doubt about the charges, saying that Mr. Sawyer, a political science professor, and George Kieh, a lecturer, had "demonstrated strong dedication" to an "orderly and peaceful return to democratic civilian rule."

Mr. Sawyer formed the Liberia People's Party to contest elections that have been scheduled for October 1985. He, Mr. Kich and two colonels were arrested last Saturday. Monrovia radio said Tuesday that Mr. Sawyer and his supporters had planned bomb zaiacks and mass arrests of citizens to install a socialist government with the aid of foreign countries.

Striking U.K. Miners Attack 3 Towns

LONDON (AP) — Striking coal miners besieged the northern England villages of Armthorpe, Bentley and Edlington, all in the South Yorkshire coal region, on Wednesday after small groups of rebel miners crossed picket lines, police said.

A police spokesman said that Armthorpe was sealed off to protect the public when some of the 1,000 or so pickets looted stores, hurled stones and other objects at passing vehicles and commandeered cars, setting them on fire to form barricades.

More than 1,000 additional miners have defied picket lines in recent weeks in response to a back-to-work campaign by the National Coal Board, but they represent only a fraction of the more than 100,000 miners in the work force of about 180,000 who the National Union of Mineworkers says remain on strike.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said the ban at the facility, which monitors Soviet communications, was necessary for national security. The technicians, who stopped work Monday to protest management plans to restructure their pay grades, have threatened further action if their grievances are not resolved.

BELJING — China's most powerful leader, Deng Xiaoping, turned 80 Wednesday without official celebrations. But one journal showed a picture of him swimming, and the People's Daily carried a 3,000-word article by his daughter about his life during the Cultural Revolution.

The weekly newspaper Liaowang, or Outlook, published a picture of Mr. Deng that was reminiscent of a 1966 photograph of Mao swimming in the Chang Yang River. That picture was reportedly taken to dispel rumors that Mao was unwell.

The photograph used by Liaowang was said to have been taken near Mr. Deng's summer retreat

The article by Mr. Deng's daughter, Mao Mao, covered half a page of the People's Daily, the Communist Party newspaper. It described Mr. Deng's years as a political outcast in the late 1960s

Mr. Deng worked on a lathe in a tractor factory, grew cabbage and beans to feed his family and read works by Marx and Lenin, she said. The story dealt with the period after 1966, when

Mr. Deng and the president, Liu Shaoqi, were purged as potential capitalists. "Now he suddenly got the order that he was being sent to Jiangxi province." Jiangxi is in southern

Mr. Deng, the article said, was sent to a house in the city of Nanchang, and did "menial jobs such as cleaning the floor and splitting firewood." In February 1973, Mr. Deng was summoned back to the government, although he was to be purged once again in 1976. He returned to the government after Mao died in 1976.

In 1977, Mr. Deng became deputy prime minis-ter, and used that post to force aside Hua Guofeng. Mao's designated successor. Mr. Deng resigned that post in 1980. But he holds the chairmanship of party advisory committee and the chairmanship of the Military Council and leads the dominant moderate faction in the government.

MONTEVIDEO — In Uruguay,
where the military has ruled since 1973, the twilight of the generals' government has brought a virtual explosion of liberty. But the transi-tion to democracy has been complicated by the continued detention of Uruguay's most popular politician, Wilson Ferreira Aldunaie.

Barely two months ago the press was rigidly controlled. Mention of Mr. Ferreira was cause for the confiscation of a newspaper's press run, or even its closure. Bookstores offered a fare reflecting the milip.M., this city's streets resembled those of a ghost town. Buildings were free of the graffiti that punctuates Latin politics.

provinces of Hejaz and Asir.

Kamal Salibi, professor of history at the American University of Beirut, put forward the theory in his book "The Bible Came From Arabia," which the West German magazine Spiegel has contracted to Without knowing the details of Mr. Salibi's argument, two Israeli biblical scholars, Moshe Kochavi and David Usishkin of Tel Aviv University, dismissed it as "crazy, farfetched and laughable." A West German biblical scholar at the University of Münster, a member of a panel investigating Mr. Salibi's theory for Spiegel, de-scribed the book as "a typical work of Arab self-conceit." But Mr. Salibi said that linguists on the panel had decided that the work was sound and should be published. The professor said he developed his theory in 1979, while searching for non-Arabic place names in the Arabian peninsula.

"The evidence that the whole Bible land was there struck me in the face," he wrote in his book, "Nearly all the biblical names were concentrated in an area approximately 600 kilometers (360 miles) long and 200 kilometers wide." The area in question lies between the Moslem holy city of Mecca and the Saudi-North Yemeni border. The Red Sea bounds it on the west affecting security and has settled and a mountain ridge, rising to instead for an armed forces advisoheights of 3,100 meters (10,200

Inside the Ferraro File

After nearly two weeks of self-inflicted anguish. Geraldine Ferraro has published her husband's tax returns and financial records along with her own. As finally promised, their report is extensive and more detailed than any law requires. And at first blush, the details make one wonder why there was ever any reluctance to disclose to this extent.

Ms. Ferraro and her husband, John Zaccaro, turn out to be a prosperous couple who paid considerable taxes and tried, within reasonable limits, to erect some useful barriers between her career as a congresswoman and his real estate and insurance businesses. Whether or not every one of Mr. Zaccaro's commercial transactions can withstand national scrutiny, there is nothing in the records now revealed suggesting any abuse of his close relationship with her. Nor is there even a hint that she ever betraved her public trust or wrongly profited from public office.

The couple's main mistake so far was to try to rescind Ms. Ferraro's promise to release her husband's tax return. Thus were born the suspicion that they had something to hide and the speculation that the Democratic candidate for vice president was in danger of losing her upright reputation if not the nomination itself.

After many days of inept dealings with the public, however. Ms. Ferraro has met her first big test of the national campaign with impressive skill and self-assurance. It will take some time for all her revelations to be minutely examined, as the election laws intend. But unless serious new questions arise, she is entitled to her wish to be allowed now to turn to the broad issues of this election year.

Leading up to this week's climactic accounting, the news reports of the Ferraro-Zaccaro finances seemed to pose three main questions:

■ Did Ms. Ferraro, during six years in Congress, properly exempt herself from disclosing her spouse's finances? Such a claim, made by just a handful of other members, is available only to those who do not know about or benefit from a spouse's income.

Ms. Ferraro now asserts that she knew very little about her husband's real estate business and that the law cannot demand utter ignorance. As for benefit, she contends that the law cannot require a married couple to live apart or to own separate refrigerators. These arguments seem to conflict with prevailing House practice and may well prove mistaken. But Ms. Ferraro is persuasive about her motives in claiming the exemption and does not appear to have been hiding any wrongdoing.

Did Ms. Ferraro and her husband bend the rules in financing her 1978 election campaign? Tracing the many-cornered pattern of intra-family loans and repayments, real estate sales and repurchases is a frustrating and inconclusive exercise. Plainly, the family had decided to bear most of the campaign's expense and struggled to find resources that were clearly Ms. Ferraro's own, as the law requires. The intent seems clear. The legalities may yet beget more questions.

Did the Zaccaro family pay a fair share of taxes? The personal tax returns show considerable payments every year, though they do not reveal all aspects of Mr. Zaccaro's separate, corporate practices. The couple did, in a joint 1978 return, omit part of a capital gain that accountants discovered only in recent days. The original accountant now takes the blame for this underpayment of $29,700 in federal tax. Perhaps a seasoned broker and his wife, a lawyer, should have spotted the failure to compute the value of a property mortgage. But Ms. Ferraro insists persuasively that it was a mistake, not an evasion.

On the record so far, Ms. Ferraro can be chastised for a slow, confused and finally melodramatic unfolding of all the facts pertaining to her finances. But her fellow citizens should understand that the case raised ethics issues of novel complexity, involving a wealthy usinessman spouse. The public should also bear in mind that the purpose of all this exposure is not to find one or another error or misjudgment, but to reveal the financial interests of office seekers in ways that let the voter perceive any potential con-flict of interest. Nothing now known casts any doubt whatever on Ms. Ferraro's capacity to serve the nation as vice president.

Moving and Shaking Behind the Balloons

By Newt Gingrich

DALLAS—Do national political conventions still serve a purpose? I strongly believe they do, particularly for the Republican Party, which is undergoing an important transition.

The 1984 Democratic and Republican conventions are the first in recent history that will not have had gavel-to-gavel coverage by the na-tional television networks. Some observers suggest that this change toward partial coverage is the first step in the decline of national conventions as institutions. Others suggest that this decline began with the rise of electronic communications and the elimination of multibaliot presiden-tial nomination lights. A few have even suggested that national conventions should either be abolished or limited to one open day spectacle celebrating a candidate who has already been nominated.

As a participant in this year's Republican National Convention and a nember of the executive committee of the party's platform committee, I don't think national television coverage of the convention is particularly important. What is important is that the leadership of the national party meet to chart the path it will take in The key element of the convention is the discussion and analysis that goes on among the party activists, which has never been well covered by the media anyway. It is for the sake of that gathering of the party elite that I would argue that the tradition of national conventions must continue. Far more than simple power bro-kering or vote counting is going on when 3,000 or 4,000 activists gather of modern management to the military bureaucracy.

The beginning of this transition

A free society cannot govern itself simply through referendums and slogans and 30-second commercials. A free society must constantly renew and re-educate its national élite. The old and new within that elite must argue, shaping appeals to a variety of interest grouns— conomic, ideological, regional and ethnic— and decide among them-selves which direction to lead. The Republican elite meeting this week in Dallas will guide the party through a crucial transition.

As I see it, the new Republican Party should argue aggressively with the decaying welfare state establishment — both the Republican and the Democratic side of that establish ment. Where Was Mondale When Ferraro Needed Him?

By Sydney Schanberg

N EW YORK — Every time Ger-aldine Ferraro issues another comment in her attempt to put out the fire over her and her husband's finances, she seems instead to send the flames higher.

There she was on Monday, telling us that something her husband had done was all right when clearly it was something a teen-ager would know he should not do. Her husband, John Zaccaro, had borrowed $100,000 from the monies of an elderly, incapacitated woman whose estate he was overseeing as a conservator appointed by a court. He needed the money to pay some bills because his business was temporarily short of cash. Yes, he paid it back -- with interest. But that did not make it right. What high school student, if asked, would not know that it is wrong, if you are made guardian of someone's estate, to use that money for your personal needs?

Yet Ms. Ferraro says her husband "never knew it was improper" because the court had not told him it was improper. "John did nothing she said, and even insisted that it was not an error in judgment.

The details of this transaction are no longer important. What is important is how sad the whole thing is, how unfortunate that she and her husband and her Democratic running mate, Walter Mondale, and all their advisers did not realize that the time to lay out the family's finances was a month ago, when she was riding the trectops as the first woman to be the vice-presidential nominee of a

Instead she had stumbled and fumbled and wrestled futilely with a hus-band who wanted to keep his busi-ness affairs private but who, since he is a grown-up living in the age of disclosure, had to know that the spouse of a vice-presidential candi-date whom he has listed as the secretary, treasurer and vice president of his real estate company could not keep these affairs in his pocket. So now, a month late, with the furor burning bright, they finally send their accountants forward with swell. the tax returns and the ledgers and the balance-sheet jargon.

It is inevitable because of the way the Ferraro-Mondale camp has handled this problem that nageing ques-tions will remain about the family loans that got Ms. Ferraro elected to Congress in 1978, about the misleading disclosure forms she filed in Congress, about why John Zaccaro was so slow to help his wife by making his finances public. The best thing Ms. Ferraro can do now is to stop insisting that everything she and her hus-band did with their finances was just

She ought to acknowledge what that high school student can see, vividly, through all the diaphanous excuses — that the Ferraro-Zaccaro family, like every other family, made some errors in judgment.

They did not think, back in 1978, that any of their tax maneuvers common in real estate and other businesses - would ever be laid bare on national television. Put more simply, they did not expect Geraldine Ferraro to be a vice-presidential aspirant. Why not say all these things, if they are the truth. Voters love the truth. they get high on it - because it is heard so rarely. The guess in this corner is that telling the embarrassing truth — though it will make her feel very exposed and vulnerable — is the only way Ms. Ferraro can make herself strong again and get her cam-paign wagon out of the quicksand where it is now mired.

Some of her supporters have suggested that she is undergoing excessive scrutiny because she is a woman; they see some kind of double standard here. This won't wash. Maybe in the aftermath of Watergate the disclosure requirements for high public office — and the press coverage that goes with them — have created conditions of excess. But they are conditions for everyone — and Ms. Ferraro knew this when she accepted the nomination.

A better question is where Mr. Mondale has been through all this. Has he been snoozing, like Mr. Reagan, through important events?

Why didn't the Democratic presidential candidate step in at the start and tell M. Ferraro and her husband that there was no room for bemmins and having on this issue: They either laid their finances open to the public or she could not be on the ticket.

Mrs. Ferraro's credibility is not the only credibility on the line here. The New York Times.

Reading Between Build Teles The Hoopla

By James Reston

D ALIAS — In San Francisco, the Democratic Party emphasized two main issues: fear and fairness. Here in Dallas, the Republicans are countering with Ronald Reagan, progress and patriotism.

At this point in the campaign the propaganda phase - the Republicans have the advantage. The party has a popular, articulate president. It has the power of the White House. It has more money, and it is better at propaganda.

It has one other advantage. The economic recovery is now well on its way. The decline in inflation and unemployment are facts. The evidence is not on paper but in the street, it particularly in this gleaming city with. its building cranes swinging between the skyscrapers in the steaming heat.
In short, it is easier to put the eyeof a television camera on the tangible. evidence of new construction and on the president in the White House than to dramatize poverty or fear, which are often invisible.

It is no wonder, then, that the Rethis no wonder, then, that he we publican delegates here are in an optimistic mood. Somehow, the Republicans always look better than the Democrats, but never seem to be haveing such a good time. Yet they think, in such a good time. Yet they think, the trends are going with them now, and that conservatism is in the saddle, not only in the United States but in Britain, West Germany and Japan.

It would be a mistake, however, to make too much of the cuphoris of the delegates here. The people who are really planning the Reagan campaign's strategy are not the men and women who dictated the conservative Republican platform.

If you talk to James Baker, the, White House chief of staff, you will, find that he takes the Democratic issues of fear and fairness with the. utmost seriousness, and is not counting on President Reagan's present 15-, point lead in the polls. He predicts a close race, not merely to avoid Tom. Deweyish overconfidence, but be-cause he believes it.

Similarly, Secretary of the Treasury Donald Regan does not take casually the Democratic charges of overspending on defense or the pre-sent rate of budget deficits.

The White House and cabinet officials are being more canny. Their assumption is that more than 100, million voters will go to the polls in November, maybe 15 or 16 milliony more than in 1980. And while the Republicans are mounting an ambi-tious registration drive, a majority of these new voters may well be blacks, and women, who are more likely to vote for the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Reagan's principal advisers do not expect that the Republican platform will do anything to abolish the fairness issue, and the fear issue gives them even more concern. Anxiety over the stalemate in the nuclear arms race could still be the "sleeper" in this campaign.

Mr. Reagan has hoped to pick up support in the churches by his opposition to abortion and his support for school prayer, but it is not clear that these are winning issues, and more than half the delegates here have indicated their support for a verifiable "freeze" on the development and deployment of nuclear arms. The Republican leaders hope to counter this antinuclear movement by appeals to patriotism. Their campaign motion picture is one long appeal to patriotic spirit, and most speakers here so far have sought to condemn the Democrats for letting the nation down and encouraging So viet rearmament and aggression.

Jeane Kirkpatrick, in a major for eign policy speech Monday night, accused the Democrats of ignoring foreign policy issues at the San Francisco convention. In additions she charged, whenever anything went wrong in the world in recent years. the Democrats blamed not the Russians but their own country.

Her speech was a masterpiece of oversimplification, if not distortion. She asked what would become of Europe if the United States withdrew from the Continent, what would be come of Europe and Israel and Africa if the Middle East fell to the Russians - as if the Democrats or anybody else was inviting such disasters.

Her appeals to patriotism — as if the Republicans were its only protect tor - invite a serious debate on the fear issue. But this is the one thing the party leaders are trying to minimizer Nevertheless, the fear and fairness Nevertheless, the real and random issues are not likely to go away. After the Dallas convention, nobody will have a captive audience, and even Mr. Reagan and Walter Mondale will have to answer for their charges. The New York Times.

The Old Are Richer

modestly since 1980, in general. But there is one slice of U.S. demography that is a striking exception to that pattern. The elderly as a group have done very well over the past four years. In its book "The Reagan Record," pub-lished last week, the Urban Institute shows that the incomes of the elderly are up sharply all across the range from poor to rich.

Most of it happened for reasons having little to do with the Reagan administration and its ideas. Legislation passed much earlier built a lot of momentum into the continuing rise of federal benefits for the elderly. Most conspicu-ously, Social Security benefits have risen 7 percent, after inflation, over the past four years. That is twice as fast as the rise in the average income of all families, after inflation and after taxes.

But the Reagan policies also helped the elderly — and helped them more than any other category of population in the Urban Institute's study. The sharp drop in inflation helped them, while few of them were affected by the recession and the high unemployment that forced inflation down. They benefited from high interest rates. They benefited from parently were not greatly affected by its reductions in spending on social programs. Among the poor and near-poor, the Urban Institute found, people over 65 are the only large group that has enjoyed an increase in average incomes since 1980.

There was a time, not very long ago, when elderly people constituted a very large propor-tion of the genuinely destitute in this country. That, happily, is no longer true, largely be-cause of enlightened social legislation—chiefly Social Security - supported by both parties

No one would want to see those programs diminished, or the economic condition of elderly people decline. But the acceleration of recent years raises a question about future policy. Living standards among the elderly are approaching those of the rest of the population. The case is fading for further increases at rates faster than the rise in the working population's income. This issue is not one that you are likely to hear debated with any great enthusiasm during the election campaign. But it lies in wait for the next administration. — THE WASHINGTON POST.

Most of the people, however, who went out to the plaine of Betheny did not forget that aerial contests were quite new. The people who gathered at the aerodrome were treated to the most magnificent exhibition of flying ever witnessed. No language is adequate to convey the idea of the unprecedented spectacle. Five aeroplanes were at six o'clock racing simultaneously round the ten-kilomètre course. The spectacle of six aeroplanes in the air and a dozen more on the ground was one that held the spectators spellbound.

BERLIN - In a steady effort to consolidate his dictatorship, Chancellor Adolf Hitler [on Aug. 22] took extraordinary measures to decree that not only German soldiers but all officials of the Reich in the Federal State must swear loyalty to his own person, "to the Leader of the German Reich and people, Adolf Hitler." By this new regulation, the law issued on December 1, 1933, dealing with the oath of the German soldiers and officials, is declared invalid. The text of the new oath to be sworn is: "I swear I shall be loyal and obedient to the Leader of the German Reich and people, Adolf Hitler. I shall observe laws and fulfill my duties conscientiously, so help me God."

The regime would like to do away with this general malaise and silence the intellectual dissidence, whose influence is growing. This, in part, ex-plains the roundup of intellectuals last April, in which Milovan Djilas, Tito's one-time heir apparent, was involved. Microwave News noted that the findings could provide an experimental basis for widely reported complaints of headaches, dizziness, memory loss and fatigue from people chronically exposed to microwave radiation. U. S., Japan Develop 'Quake Barrier'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Engineers can now go beyond the "spring and shock absorber" methods of protecting tall buildings against earthquakes with a new concept developed simultaneously by scientists in California and Japan.

Called the "earthquake barrier," the new system uses stainless steel ball bearings arranged in clusters beneath each column and wall to "float" a building's foundation through a tremor. A network of steel "control beams" is used to tie the structure to the foundation, but the beams' can stretch and bend from the forces of a strong quake.

Marc S. Caspe, of San Mateo, California, the developer in the United

Scientists Trying to Isolate Biological Factors in Alcoholism

Lend of the cocktail party. Several guests are still talkative, friendly, charming and winty. But in one corner a woman is crying Two men nearby are arguing, picking fights at every turn. Another guest has passed out. Yet another, who half an hour aro was harmy and friend.

Normally, Dr. Noble said, the fats are somewhat fluid and the an hour ago was happy and friendly, is now sick and depressed.

All are under the influence of the only drug, alcohol, that is soluble in fat and water. As such, it invades every part of the human body, af-fecting virtually every cell and every biological pathway. It is a sim-ple molecule with effects so complex that only a decade ago scientists avoided studying it.

Now, however, alcoholism researchers, relying heavily on the tools of molecular biology, are finding new biological explana-tions for how alcohol affects the nan brain. And it is believed that these findings will provide im-portant elements of understanding physiological and genetic -- for why people behave differently when they drink, why some become alcoholics but most do not and why some drinkers stay friendly and others become hostile.

The research is also leading scientists to conclude that alcohol's positive effects are so enormously appealing — in small doses it re-keves anxiety better than any other known agent — that its use and abuse are never likely to diminish. Thus one goal, though it is not often stated, is to develop a benign form of alcohol, a substance that would produce the good effects without the bad.

Crucial to the new understanding have been studies that have revealed the effects of alcohol on the workings of neurons. Billions of these brain cells send electrical and chemical signals that control cognition, consciousness and virtually all behavior. Neurons release molecules called neurotransmitters that carry information to specific receptor sites on neighboring neurons. If they control.

ERNEST NOBLE, director of University of California at Los Angeles, said researchers have deter-mined that the walls, or membranes, of the neurons consist of

Pulse Simulator to Test Resistance of Warships

New York Times Sernce D REPARATIONS for nuclear war are not traditional topics of conversation emong people of the Chesapeake Bay, an area famous for its fishing villages, seafood res-taurants, oyster barvest and crab cakes. Now, however, commercial and sports fishermen have joined the state of Maryland to protest the southern Chesapeake meant to zap ships with electromagnetic pulses that mimic those of a nuclear blast. Detonated high above Earth's at-mosphere, a nuclear bomb would bathe many thousands of square miles with an electromagnetic pulse, known as EMP, that can surge through metal objects or wires and damage electronic parts.

By William J. Broad

The U.S. Navy wants to build its simulator, called Empress II, to insure that warships are invulnerable to the pulse. The fishermen and the state fear it will kill marine life and upset the bay's delicate ecological The navy's hand was strengthened by a report from the National Academy of Sciences, which said scientists were "uncomfortable" with some routine methods the military uses to protect devices from the pulse, since the protections are not foolproof. But the report went on to say that their fallibility made it all the more important to test the effectiveness.

The report had a clear mes-

The academy report has been all but ignored by the opposition.

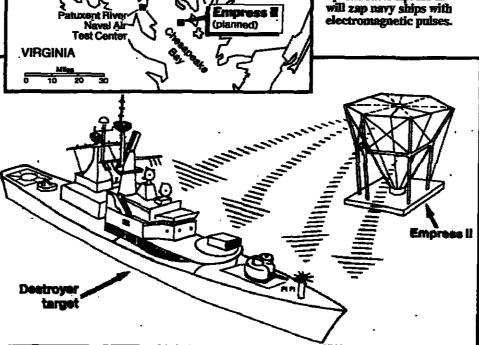

"The bay is one of the most productive ecosystems in the world," said Ellen L. Fraites, executive assistant to Maryland's governer, Harry Hughes. "We're making a massive effort to clean it up, and now the navy's going to subject it to this incredible insult. It doesn't make any sense."

The navy's desire for the new simulator pump stems in part from the difficulties of protecting ships from EMP. The ideal way to protect a military device - a missile, for example - is to cover it completely with a thin sheet of metal that can siphon off the high-voltage surge before it gets in and does damage. Ships are too big for that approach. Instead, their internal vires and cables must be fitted with myriad filters and surge arresters.

The navy has one simulator. Empress I, at Point Patience in Solomons, Maryland. Its power is limited, however, and so is the size of the ship it can accommodate; destroyers and aircraft carriers cannot navigate the narrow channels to get near it. Empress II would be barge-mounted, Its 130-foot (40meter) antenna would be able to shoot seven million volts, whose intensity would diminish rapidly with distance, toward a nearby warship. Scheduled for completion in 1987, the pulser would be floated west of Bloodsworth Island, near the center of the bay. In a letter sent to the secretary of the navy, John F. Lehman Jr. in sage," said John M. Richardson of June, Governer Hughes protested the academy's committee on electromagnetic pulse. "You have to perform tests at facilities like Emthe probable effect of Empress II on fish, marine mammals and wa-

Earth's Spin Shows Daily Variations By Walter Sullivan

N EW, highly precise measure-ments of Earth's rotation have shown that its rate varies from day to day in a manner that, to a surprising degree, is controlled by the weather.
The observations have necessi-

They are also enabling scientists to watch for the long-range distortions of the landscape that precede great earth-The most startling discovery has come from a study of Earth-rotation records obtained during last year's unusually severe occurrence of the phenomenon known as El Niño, in which weather patterns are disrupted by an unusual warming of ocean currents in the tropical areas of the eastern Pacific. In late January, westward air flow in the tropics reached a peak eight percent higher than any previous record. Within a matter of weeks, the length of the night-day cycle was shortened by more than threethousandths of a second.

At 3 P.M.: NYSE Trading Active NEW YORK — After getting off to a roaring start, prices on the New York Stock Exchange turned mixed late Wednesday afternoon in active trading as investors cashed in on profits from recent gains.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up about 7 points at the outset, was off 8.51 to 1,231,22 an hour before the close. It climbed 22.75 to 1.239.73 Tuesday, the highest closing level since it finished at 1,242.88 on Jan. 24.

Through Tuesday, the average had risen 153.16 points since hitting a 17-month low of While prices in tables on these pages are from the 4 P.M. close in New York, for reasons of time this earlier in the day.

Analysts said any time the market makes a huge gain in a short period of time it always runs into some profit taking pressure. The bluechip issues that paced the recent rally were among the hardest hit in profit taking.

William Dailey of Montgomery Securities, San Francisco, said, "the underlying buying power is still there. A lot of portfolio money is around to be invested and I think it will come into the market soon.

"I am not surprised that some profit-taking

The mystique of the stock market, the thing that ranks it right up there with love and poker, is the challenge of figuring out at any one time whether things are falling into place or falling apart.

That was the case exactly a month ago as Wall Street, rejected again by investors, declined below 1,080 on the Dow average.

But it turned out to be the bottom of the market's fortunes, as stocks bounced upward in August's astounding outpouring of affection. Skepticism remains, however, and that could be what the cou will keep investors breathing heavily on Wall Street.

The dominant institutional-investor reactions to the market's sharp advance have been incredulity and fear," said Francis H.M. Kelly, chairman of the investment policy committee at Op-penheimer & Co. "Some feel the market should have gone down and should have gone and not up, others that it advanced beights for long."

Mr. Kelly said the "real question" is whether there is a reason for the early-August stampede. Bowing to the market's mysterious ability to anticipate events, he added: "We don't know yet which is potentially very good news.

"The bullish case depends on short-term ignorance, the bearish case on certainty. The bears know that rates are going to go higher, that a recession is just around the corner, that bonds and bills outrank stocks, that speculation and only speculation is the name of August's game."

Dana Stewart, market analyst at Bear Stearns, also welcomed recent pronouncements of skepticism by many Wall Street strategists on just how sustainable the rally is.

gists on just how sustainable the rally is,

"And so, just when we could use it, when stocks threatened to become radically overbought, we have been served up with a classic 'wall of worry' upon which the bull market can climb. Stocks are going higher, and we think those who are reluctant to participate not only will be hurt in their performance records but risk being forced in higher up."

This wall-of-worry factor, Mr. Stewart explained, basically means that buying on Wall Street will "remain under control" so the rally can avoid "running out of steam too quickly."

"It makes it sustainable," he said.

The rally appears to have "enough visor." he asserted to

The raily appears to have "enough vigor," he asserted, to achieve new highs "without much difficulty into the 1,300s, and by the beginning of next year there's the distinct possibility of getting into the 1,400s."

HILE most market analysts have complained that stocks over the year showed no "leadership" sector that might lead Wall Street out of its long downward movement, Mr. Stewart, along with his Bear Stearns' colleague, Lew Smith, cite the performance of "disinflation-benefited" groups.
Food stocks notably, Mr. Stewart said, provided the "flesh and backbone to this rally." He continued to favor this group, plus these individual issues: Gulf & Western, Penn Central, Deluxe Check Printers, May Department Stores, Taft Broadcasting and Edward M. Kerschner, head of investment policy at Paine Webber, took a less exuberant view of the market's prospects, and one that is widespread on Wall Street.

"There is reason to take advantage of this rally, he declared "But without abandoning all caution and plunging in blindly."

Stock selection should be emphasized, he added, particularly issues that can "participate in any rally, yet have the underlying ble than the average stock in the event of any market pullback." Mr. Kerschner thinks there is the opportunity now for investors to "redesign" their portfolio to include stocks offering the best potential and weed out issues that could be vulnerable. In the former category Paine Webber puts American Medical International, Gillette, Hospital Corp. of America, Humana,

President Changed At FCA

3-Man Office Is Created

LOS ANGELES — In an apparent concession to federal regula-tors, Charles Knapp, the embattled chairman and chief executive of Financial Corp. of America, has ceded his power over day-to-day operation of the giant holding company to a newly created, three-man office of the president, the company said Wednesday.

The action comes one week after FCA, under pressure from the Se-curities and Exchange Commis-sion, restated its earnings to show a $79.9-million loss compared with a $75.3-million profit for the first

In addition, FCA has been forced to draw heavily on funds from the Federal Home Loan Bank's regional office in San Fran-cisco to offset withdrawals by wor-ried depositors. And earlier this week, FCA sold a 7-million-share block of stock in American Express

Co. to raise $222.3 million.
On Tuesday, Standard & Poor's
Corp., a leading business information service, said it was considering lowering its rating on $75 million in bonds sold by FCA. S&P said it had placed FCA on its CreditWatch list "with negative implications." Such a listing indicates a bond rating is being re-viewed for a possible downgrading. FCA is the parent of Stockton. California-based American Sav-

Doumeng Sticks To Party Line And Lives Well

By Paul Lewis New York Times Service

PARIS — Jean-Baptiste Dou-meng owns a stable of thorough-bred horses, a Learjet that takes him around the world and a large working farm in southwestern France, complete with villa and swimming pool. In Paris, he dines frequently at Maxim's and the impeccably tailored, conservatively cut suits that cover his portly frame are obviously ex-

These trappings would hardly draw notice in a successful executive, and Mr. Doumeng certainly fits that bill. But he is more than that. The 64-year-old son of a poor sharecropper is also France's richest Communist, a man who has parlayed a trading relationship with the Soviet bloc into a vast personal fortune.

But lately those business and personal ties to the Soviet Union, coupled with the swirling controversies that typically surround him, have proved to be a source of concern and embarrassment to France's Socialist government, which once seemed to be his natural ally but now serves as a target for his criticism as it backs away from Socialist pro-

His company, Interagra, one of the largest in France, is a sprawling private agribusiness and trading empire that Mr. Doumeng says makes him Europe's biggest dealer in food and agricultural goods.

Interagra buys, swaps and sells a vast range of goods ranging from food to tropical hard-woods, does business in 65 countries and is now moving heavily into trade with Africa, according to Mr. Doumeng. He would not discuss interagra's size, but last year told an interviewer that Interagra would have total sales of 20 billion francs that year -$2.26 billion at current exchange rates - and a profit of between $4.5 million and $5.6 million, twice the previous year's level. One of Mr. Doumeng's most recent transactions involved selling 1,800 tons of inexpensive table wine to the Soviet Union in late July, a transaction welcomed by France's Socialist government and the French wine industry. which is now sitting on a record surplus of low-quality table

This year, his company is ex-pected to sell the Soviet Union about $280 million of French surplus foodstuffs - 1.5 million tons of wheat, 120,000 tons of flour and 50,000 tons of meat. The value of these sales comes to about half of France's total annual wheat exports. In any other country struggling as desperately as France is to close it trade gap export contracts like that would warrant national acclaim.

But late last year, just as Mr. Doumeng was signing those ac-cords. Le Canard Enchaine, a French satirical weekly, contended that the new government had slashed a $4.3-million Doumeng bill for back taxes to $250,000. The article implied that the Socialist-Communist government was giving preferenual treatment to one of its most ardent supporters. An embarrassed government ordered an audit of Mr. Doumeng and said he would pay an undisclosed ad-ditional sum in back taxes. While the tax case was splashed all over the French press, Foreign Trade Minister Edith Cresson decided it was politically prudent to distance the government in public from Mr. Doumeng. She got her chance last November in Moscow when he tried to gate-crash a meeting with the Soviet trade authorities. "Leave the room before you cause an incident." she told him in a furious stage whisper. Re-(Continued on Page 13, Col. 3)

Inflation in U.S. Increased 0.3% During July

Washington Post Service
WASHINGTON — U.S. COBsumer prices increased 0.3 percent last month as food prices rose the most they have in five months and gasoline prices continued to plummet, the Labor Department reported Wednesday.

The department said the July increase was slightly more than the rises in May and June, but the rate of price increases was still at a 2.6-percent rate for the last three months, and at a 4.1-percent rate for the past 12 months.

The inflation report was the second piece of good news on the inflation front released this week as President Ronald Reagan and oth-er Republicans meet in Dallas for their national convention.

Mr. Reagan is expected to capitalize on the economy's strong growth and low inflation in his speech on Thursday, accepting his party's nomination for president.

White House aides said. On Monday the government reported that the nation's output of goods and services grew at a 7.6percent rate during the second quarter, following a 10.1-percent rate in the first quarter. A White House spokesman said the statistics this week showed that the economy is still growing steadily is "still on course. Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported that new orders for factory durable goods rose 2.2 percent in July, following a decline in June. However, new orders for nonmilitary capital goods, which is considered an indicator of future investment in plant and equipment, fell 3.3 percent following a 3.2 percent decline in June.

Economists, however, said that there is still a large backlog in or-ders to be filled by manufacturers which should keep production rolling for some time.

"Overall growth in orders this year clearly has been slower than last year," said Robert Ortner, Commerce Department chief economist. "However, increases on balance are continuing" so far this

ing. "We have the economy on our side and that's no mean accom-plishment," he said.

Consumer prices rose 0.2 per-cent, both in May and June. Last month most major categories of consumer spending posted moder-ate increases which were partially offset by a drop in transportation costs, the Labor Department said.

The housing segment of the in-dex accounted for about two-thirds of the increase. That component reflected increases in the cost of shelter, natural gas and electricity. However, prices for gasoline declined 1.8 percent last month, fol-lowing a 1.5-percent decline in June. The cost of used cars also dropped 0.7 percent after increasing 0.1 percent in June. The basic story is the inflation rate is not what it used to be," said Donald Straszheim of Wharton Econometrics. "There is precious little evidence of reacceleration" of inflation. Mr. Straszheim said there had heen a "transformation in price performance in the last few years." Part of that behavior of prices is due to a slow down in the increase in wage gains, he said.

Also absent have been exoge nous price shocks such as the ef-fects of droughts and oil shortages which would drive up food and fuel costs, Mr. Straszheim said. Although many economists have marveled at the economy's ability to sustain strong growth and low inflation, Mr. Straszheim said that such conditions often exist, but for short periods of time. "The slightly faster increase in the CPI is due primarily to the relative price of food and housing and does not reflect a general in-crease in inflation," said Jerry Jasinowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers. "The underlying rate of inflation is expected to stay in the 4percent range for the rest of the Food and beverage costs rose 0.3

tional portfolio managers, who consider themselves long-term investors without the need for a short-term tool.

John McCarthy, a managing partner of Lord Abbett & Co., who oversees portfolios of about $2 billion, said he does not use index options. "We pick stocks using our own analysis for the long-term, so we haven't felt pressure to move

Citroën Workers Endorse Company's Lay-Off Plan

PARIS - Workers representatives at Citroen, the French auto-maker, overwhelmingly approved a steel and skupbuilding sectors, is controversial lay-off scheme for the financially troubled Pengeot SA subsidiary Wednesday.

But the go-ahead for Citroën to lay off 2,417 of its 43,000 workers must await final approval by the Socialist government of President François Mitterrand, company and union officials said. Earlier Wednesday, Henri Krasucki, leader of the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor, or CGT, which boycotted Wednesday's meeting at Citroen, said the union opposed the layoff plan and called for "real negotiations" be-fore any job cuts are decided for the French auto industry.

It was unclear if the opposition by the CGT, France's biggest union, would affect the government decision on Citroen. Government and industry sources noted that extensive job cuts in other heavy industries had been ap-proved in spite of CGT opposition.

A spokesman for the labor min-ister, Michel Delabarre, said the government's response to Citroën's layoff plan could come this week. The Citroën plan is generally regarded as the start of an industrywide effort to streamline and modemize operations at Peugeot and state-owned Renault to try to reverse shrinking sales and heavy linancial losses at both companies.

Oil Firms Bid For Key Projects In Beaufort Sea ANCHORAGE, Alaska

The layoffs, combined with and other cost-cutting measures, should put the company in the black by the end of the year, Mr. Nogales said. As pre-viously reported, rumors at UPI that the staff could be reduced by from 5 to 15 percent were dismissed by management, who called the figures too high.

Supply of New Cars in U.S. Is Running Short

By Daniel F. Cuff New York Times Service

NEW YORK - New cars are in short supply in the United States, creating a seller's market for dealers at a time of year when they traditionally are trying to unload stocks to make way for the new

"It's not as easy to shop around," said Harvey Heinbach, a Merrill Lynch analyst. "Dealers are not wheeling and dealing and you are not getting the typical end-of-mod-el-year fire sales." The situation is tight for domestic cars and worse for imports. "For all practical purposes, the import dealers are sold out," said David Healy, an analyst at Drexel Burn-

The import situation is worse for two reasons, Mr. Heinbach said. The quota on Japanese imports leaves dealers with a period of time where demand exceeds the ability to supply, while strikes in West Germany this summer cut down on the supply of such luxury imports as Mercedes-Benz, Audi and in short supply.

"We've got two trucks and one car on the lot, and that's all," be said. "We're just about ready to get a new shipment and that's already 85 percent sold."

Mr. Fusz also sells Pontiacs and Dodges and added that these domestic cars were also in short supply, compared with the heavy inventories of the last couple of years. Particularly scarce were the Pontiac Fiero and the Dodge mini-van,

For the dealer, he said, "Too many cars on hand is bad, and too few cars is also bad."

For the buyer, when cars are scarce, pricing is firm and specialprice arrangements are few. Import dealers have been able to find buy-ers who will pay above the sticker price. "They are not doing the unit volume but their per unit price looks pretty nice," Mr. Heinbach said of the import dealers.

Sales may be held down for the next few months in the domestic industry, analysts said, because come out later in the fall. The effect on sales has already been detected in the reports for the first 10 days of August, when domestic sales dipped 0.8 percent, the first year-to-year decline in 1984. The shortage of domestic cars arose because the industry has been selling more than it could produce. Inventory is also being cut by plant shutdowns for change-over to the new model year. Thus, although the domestic industry has been producing cars at capacity, it ended July with only a 47-day supply on hand. "Normally the supply would be more on the order of 55 or 60 days," Mr. Healy imports were down to a 23-day supply. Before Japanese import quotas, inventories for foreign cars as a whole ran well over 60 days. the analysts said. The shortage of domestic inven-

THE KILLING OF THE UNICORN: Dorothy Stratten 1960-1980

By Peter Bogdanovich, $12.95, 186 pp. Morrow, 105 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016.

Reviewed by Charles Champlin

THE young woman in the photograph on the dust jacket has long golden hair; wide, full sensual lips; and a face that is roundly pretty but has not yet achieved mature beauty. Her eyes are arresting: dark, accusing and hostile, as if they mirrored a cynical and disillusioned wisdom beyond her years. The viewer need not know who she was to interpret the contempt in that stare. She was Dorothy Stratten, Playmate of the Year for 1980, star of three motion pictures, beloved of Peter Bogdanovich, murdered with a particular savagery by her jealous pump of a husband, Paul Snider, who then killed himself. She was not yet 21.

She has in the four years since her death been the subject of an American television movie. "Death of a Centerfold"; a feature film, Bob Fosse's "Star 80," whose title came from the license plates of the Mercedes Stratten bought for Snider; and now in Bogdanovich's account of the 300-odd days they knew each other before her death.

At one level, "The Killing of the Unicorn" is a depressing and persuasive indictment, the most accusing yet, of Hugh Hefner, his private life and his public Playboy philosophy and of their raunchy confluence in the Playboy Mansion West in Los Angeles.

Bogdanovich characterizes Hefner as "a kind of Walt Disney of pornography homogenized for the masses" and says that Hefner must bear part of the responsibility for Stratten's dearh, although Bogdanovich admits that he, too, bears some guilt and responsibility.

There seems no doubt that Bogdanovich approved the choice of photograph; it perfectly mirrors the image of Stratten he creates as "a tragic casualty of the unequal war between the sexes . . . born into a world where all the roles are scrambled, and all of nature con-

Stratten had a money-short and difficult childhood, her father having split early. She had an intense, ill-fated relationship while she was still in high school and, low on self-image, was evidently an easy mark for the flattery of Snider, a struting hustler whom Heiner finally barred from the Mannon, a rejection that ap-

Snider told Stratten that she would probably have to sleep with Hefner to make the Playboy deal pay off hig, but he assured her this would be OK, Bogdanovich reports. But she rejected a Heiner pass one night in the hot tub, Stratten told Bogdanovich, and Heiner never got over the rejection, although her career with Playboy went forward, because she was very pretty indeed. [UPI reported that Heiner flatly denies he ever romanced Stratten, maintaining his relationship with her was strictly business and platonic. He said he is contemplating fliing a lawsuit against Bogdanovich but is unwilling to focus more attention on the book than it

Stratten loved the unicorn, the fabled animal of antiquity that could be captured only by placing a young virgin in its lair, and it gives Bogdanovich his title, supporting his angry theme of innocence destroyed.

His impassioned argument is that the Playboy Philosophy, taken as the text of the sexual revolution, simply extended the domination of men over women and left women like Dorothy

Stratten's tragedy is unquestionably more universally indicting and thought-provoking than, say, John Beiushi's. If he was a victim of his own inability to handle success, Stratten was a victim of a whole skein of forces in the society, not least the perception of beauty as a commodity to be bought and sold.

She seems not less a victim for having been a (relatively) willing victim. She got through the nude posing, she told Bogdanovich, by using her hatred to construct an invisible sizeld between herself and the oglers at the photo ses-sions. She imagined that beyond the indignities lay the tasteful riches of high-fashion modeling and the movie stardom she nearly achieved.

By now, even in the short sweep of history, the Hefner philosophy looks retrograde, a denial of the real implications of a sexual revolution. Linked as it was in time to a raised feminine consciousness, the revolution had once seemed to promise an end to the divorce of love from sex, to give women true equality in their sexual being and to erase the hypocrisies that had distorted relationships for so long.

The sense of Bogdanovich's overwrought

but affecting memoir is that he and Stratten were conjoining old-fashioned love with a new day's liberation. And the ironic moral does indeed appear to be that she was destroyed not by what had changed but by what had not changed enough — as of the old presumptions of male dominance and women as submissive objects, and a murderous jealousy when a woman seeks instead to live her own undomin-

ZURICH (AP) — Carl Lewis, quadruple gold medalist in Olympic track and field at Los Angeles, said Tuesday he would open new frontiers next year by tackling the 110-meter hurdles and the 400-meter run. Equaling the record set by Jesse Owens at the 1936 Berlin Games by winning golds in the 100- and 200-meter dashes, the long jump and the 400-meter relay. Lewis said he will run the hurdles and the longer distance if he proves competitive in trials.

Cosell to Quit 'Monday Night Football

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sportscaster Howard Cosell said Tuesday he is leaving "Monday Night Football" after 14 years to assume other ABC-TV sports assignments. "It's the end of the chapter," Cosell told The Los Angeles Times.

There had been reports recently that the outspoken Cosell, who became a controversial television personality on the strength of Monday Night Football's popularity, was "bored" with the National Football League assignment and unhappy at the abrupt elevation of former sports stars into the broadcast booth. He has called TV football broadcasting a "iockocracy." 'Monday Night will do fine without me," said Cosell, 64, who added that he will continue to host ABC's "SportsBeat" and handle some baseball and horse racing in addition to doing his national radio show. Cosell earlier quit doing boxing because he said the sport, "desperately sick," was promoting mismatches.

Cincinnati, Wayne Krenchicks pinch-hit seventh-inning single drove in Ron Oester with the tie-breaking run and Eddie Milner followed with a two-run home run to lift the Reds over St. Louis, 4-1. Winner Joe Price (6-9) allowed six hits in his seven innings, walking one and striking out five. Reliever Ted Power, making his league-leading 64th appearance, went the final two imnings for his fifth save of the

In Los Angeles, Candy Maldonado singled home Mike Marshall in loaded single and a sacrifice fly and the third inning with decisive run as the Dodgers ended Montreal's sixgame winning streak with a 4-3 triumph. Fernando Valenzuela (10-14) gave up three runs in the first but blanked the Expos the rest of the way on a six-hitter to snap a three-game losing streak. Phillies 12, Giants 5

In San Francisco, John Russell, Juan Samuel and pinch hitter Sixto Lezcano all had two hits in a 10-run eighth that buried the Giants for Philadelphia, 12-5. Entering the eighth, trailing 3-2, the Phillies sent 14 batters to the plate, the first three runs coming off rookie Frank Williams, who absorbed his second loss in eight decisions. Wilcox (14-7) went six innings; he did not allow a hit after the first inning. The 14-year veteran had won 13 games twice but never more. Oakland's Carney Lansford extended his hitting streak to 24 games, tying him with Hubie Brooks of the New York Mets for the longest in the majors this year. Indians 3, Blue Jays 1

In Toronto, Jerry Willard's tworun ninth-inning home run broke a 1-1 tie and gave Cleveland its seventh straight victory, a 3-1 decision over the Blue Jays. Rookie Roy Smith (5-4) scattered five hits in his eight innings' work for the victory.

Red Sox 11, Royals 1

In Boston, rookie Roger Clemens (8-4) struck out 15 batters while Jim Rice drove in four runs and Tony Armas three as the Red Sox crushed Kansas City, 11-1. Clemens's strikeouts were the most for a Boston pitcher since Bill Monbo-quette fanned 17 Washington Senators in 1961. The 22-year-old right-hander struck out the side in the fourth inning and familed at least one batter in every inning.

Athletes in Moscow, Outwardly Stoical, Hint Regret at Missing Olympic Games

By Andrew Warshaw

MOSCOW - Whatever happens at the Friendship '84 Games is inevitably compared with what took place at the Los Angeles Olympics. But not by the athletes at least not in public. Those who missed the Summer Games because of the Soviet-led boycott are reluctant to talk about what might have been.

Triple swimming world record-holder Kristin Otto merely shrugged her shoulders and walked nurriedly away when asked her

Ashford Sets Mark in 100

Compiled by Our Staff From Dispatches ZURICH — Evelyn Ashford who won the women's 100-meter final at the Los Angeles Olympics, set a world record in that event Wednesday with a time of 10.76 seconds.

Competing at an international track meet here, the American lowered her own mark o 10.79, set in Colorado in July 1983. Her 10.97 won the 1984

Ashford set the record after a neck-and-neck duel with East German Marlies Göhr, the run-ner-up in 10.84. Ashford trailed Göhr slightly after 50 meters but made came back strongly in the final stages. Göhr won the inaugural world title in Helsinki last year when Ashford pulled up with a torn muscle after 60 meters. Meanwhile, in Moscow, East German cyclist Lutz Hesslich set a world indoor record of 10.021 seconds in the 200-meter flying-start event at the Friend-ship '84 Games. The two-time world sprint champion beat the mark of 10,249 held since 1982 by Sergei Kopylov of the Soviet thoughts about the Olympic pull-out. Her East German teammate, individual medley, said only that every race was different.

Soviet world-record hammer thrower Yuri Sedykh went only a little further, saying he "cannot change the situation." His performance here, as well as several others in the eight sports being con-tested, would have reaped medals at the Olympics - as public-adocements are making

While the athletes here will not openly discuss their frustrations at missing the Summer Games, they seem to have talked about them with other athletes.

"I can assure you that they are desperately disappointed," said steeplechaser Ian Hagelbrand, part of the four-man Swedish delega-tion, one of the few Western teams taking part here. "I have spoken to three East-bloc field athletes, two of whom won medals here, and they told me they would have preferred to be at Los Angeles," said Hagelbrand, a third-place finisher in last week's 3,000-meter steeplechase.

None of the Swedes here made it to the Olympics because they failed to meet the qualifying standards set by their national Olympic committee. Their presence is typical of the attempt by Friendship 84 organizers to present an authentic-looking international field. Except for the Eastern-bloc nations, most of the squads are below Olympic stan-dards.

Swimmers from India, Vietnam, Syria and Lebanon have at times been lapped by the recognized Eastern European stars. In a qualifying heat for the 400-meter individual medley, 13-year-old Syrian Mualla Firas finished a minute and a half behind the winner.

In relay events, only four teams showed up for the qualifiers. Three were automatically assured of a medal, but the crowd roared just Belgian Victoria Roche, 12, the first girl ever to play in the tournament leads off first base during first-day play at the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pennsylvania. The reserve outfielder, a lifth-inning pinch hitter against Canada, walked on a 3-2 pitch and took third on a two-out double, but was stranded when a teammate grounded out. Girls have played Little League baseball since 1974 but none had ever advanced to the single-elimination series, which were initiated in 1947. Canada won Tuesday's game. 3-0.

WASHINGTON—Just before going off to Texas the presi
234, but no collecting money in the dent signed one of his favorite bits of legislation, the one permitting students to use public schools after hours to hold prayer meetings and other religious activities.

The president was so excited to have such a law that he failed to read the small print in the bill. Any student organization can use the classrooms, when school is not in session, for extracurricular activities, religious or otherwise. without interference from the school board.

What started out as a victory for conservative prayer-in-school organizations has now become Buchwald a can of worms for school officials. Students have already lined up at the Gary Slaughter High School to book their rooms for the fall term. The first one to apply for space after school was Timothy Higgins, president of the Friends of Jerry Falwell Bible Study Class.

The principal, now backed by the federal law, said, "You can have Room 167 from 3 to 6 every Thursday, Timothy, God bless you, sir."

"And God bless you, Timothy." The next one to apply was Eivis Gregory, who said he represented the Disciples of Reverend Moon. The principal became flustered. "Are you going to use our classroom for prayers?"

"I don't have to tell you what we're using the classroom for."

Wichita Museum Gets Impressionist Collection

United Press Inter-WICHITA, Kansas - More than 60 works by American impressionists will be transferred permanently from a private collection to the Wichita Art Museum.

Most of the works, owned by Mildred Graves Weir of Wichita, are by artists of the late 19th and early 20th centuries, including Childe Hassam, Edward Potthast William Merritt Chase, Theodore Robinson and William Glackens.

John Goddard's Quest for Adventure

By Steve Harvey Los Angeles Times Service OS ANGELES — At 15, an avid reader and daydreamer named John Goddard made a "blueprint for life" of 127 goals, including:

• Retrace the route of Marco Polo • Dive in a submarine

 Milk a poisonous snake Take off from and land on an aircraft carrier • Appear in a Tarzan movie.

Appear in a Tarzan movie? "Actually, I only put that down because I thought Tarzan movies were filmed in Africa, and Africa was the place I wanted to see most," Goddard, now 59, recalled

His movie career never got on track, but the soft-spoken adventurer has seen most of Africa, and everywhere else, visiting 120 countries, traversing 15 rivers, including the Nile, and climbing 12 major peaks. He also accom-plished his first four goals.

In all, he has achieved 107 of his dreams, the latest of which was visiting the Great Wall of

"I'm one of those people who needs a structured plan, some-thing to strive for," he said in his home near Los Angeles. "Plus, when I was young, I'd heard too many adults talk of things they wished they'd done when they were young.

Now he was sitting in his den, the walls alive with reminders of the wilds: a 15-foot (4.5-meter) python skin, the multicolored headdress of a Balinese witch, a 12th-century bronze opium weight from Burma, a steel Masai spear made from a British railroad track, a dagger purchased from a Pakistani bandit for $60 and, somewhat incongruously, a photo of Goddard riding a horse in the 1981 Tournament of Roses

Yes, he survived the traffic jam after the parade.

In truth, some of the first goals that Goddard achieved were less than daredevil but seemed important at the time: weigh 175 pounds stripped ("I was pretty skinny then, about 155"), become an Eagle Scout, visit a movie stu-

Goddard, whose 127th goal is to live to see the year 2000 (he would be 75 then), admits that he may have overreached with some of his remaining objectives, such as climbing Mount Everest, reading the entire Encyclopsedia Britannica, visiting every country in the world ("there are too many little principalities") and walking on the moon.

"But even if I don't do all of them, I've had a life of excitement and knowledge, which is what I set out to have," he said.

With that, he was forced to end the interview because he had promised to take one of his daughters to explore Magic Mountain amusement park. Goddard did not look worried.

Knight and three companions were arrested while exploring Vietnamese waters in June 1983 on a search for the treasures of the 17th-century Scottish pirate Captain William Kidd. The Victnamese held them on charges of illegal entry. At London's Heathrow Airport, Knight, 48. said. "I just want to lorget about it. I am O.K. physically—just a little tired and drained. I am looking forward to a cup of tea, a pint of beer, baked beans on toast, fish and chips." Vietnamese au-thorities released Knight after a payment of $10,000 collected by former school friends and sympathizers. A 19-year-old American colleague on the expedition, Fred-crick Graham Jr., was released in May after his family paid $10,000. Two other members of the expedition, both from Thailand, reportedly remain in jail.

Pope John Paul II has named Archbishop John P. Foley of Phila-delphia to head the board of directors of the Vatican's television production center, the Vatican announced. Foley was named last May to head the Vatican's news operations as president of the Pon-tifical Commission for Social Communications. Now he also is president of the nine-member board of church and lay people that controls the Vatican Television Center, officially known by its Latin name Centrum Televisificum Vaticanum. The Vatican created the television center last year as the first step toward what church officials said could one day be a full-fledged TV station. Currently the center produces and distributes religious television programming, mainly of the pope's travels.

The decision was mutual and the divorce will not be contested, said Management Group, which manages Borg Borg and Simionescu

Peter Gimbel said Tuesday that the bank safe his expedition recovered from the sunken luxury liner Andrea Doria has yielded enough American currency to make a stack more than 5 feet tall. Gimbel said it took more than 24 hours after last Thursday's live telecast of the opening of the safe to find everything in it. The safe was recovered in 1981 from the Andrea Doria, which coilided off Nantucket, Massachusetts, with the Swedish liner Bjorn Borg of Sweden, five-time champion of Wimbledon, and his wife of four years, Martana Stmionesca, plan to file for divorce.
